Kodiak High School graduate Trevor Dunbar won the Nike Outdoor National two-mile race on Friday in Greensboro, North Carolina, by trouncing a field with a number of strong runners from around the country.

-- (Dunbar 1 19 sec "I was coming into the race ... really a clear-cut favorite.")

Even though

he's from Alaska, he said he didn't think the warm muggy weather in the mid- to high-80s was any more of a disadvantage for him than for the other runners.

He described

the pace of the race as slow for the first six laps.

-- (Dunbar 2 42 sec "The race started one of the ... I was really happy with it.")

His next race will be 5,000 meter at the USA Track-and-Field Junior Nationals Sunday in Eugene, Oregon. The race is for 19-year-olds and under, and Dunbar expects a lot of competition:

-- (Dunbar 3 15 sec "And there'll be college ... just go after it.")
