This week on the Alaska Fisheries Report: The global value of seafood harvesting may be far higher than we ever thought; total salmon returns to Alaska exceed forecasts, and the Bristol Bay King Crab stock assessment is released. Also, a co-op in Sitka is honored for its exports, an Alaska Legal Services lawyer who was on the beach during Exxon Valdez is offering advice to Gulf residents, and what's this about feathered bycatch? We had help this week from KDLG's Adam Kane in Dillingham, Coast Alaska's Ed Schoenfeld in Sitka, and KTOO's Casey Kelly in Juneau.
