The results are in for the Kodiak Peace Cup King Salmon Derby, and the awards ceremony and banquet will be held this evening.

The top prize will go to Billy Boyce, a Washington angler, who reeled in a 65-point-4-pound king salmon. Two other Evergreen State fishermen were in second and third. Darryl Jensen hooked a chinook just one pound shy of Boyce's, while Perry Johnson was another pound-and-a-half back in third.

There are plenty of other bonus awards to be handed out, and it'll all take place at the Old Powerhouse Restaurant at 6 tonight. Tickets for the seafood banquet and wine tasting will be available at the door.
