This Saturday girls in Kodiak will have an opportunity to explore future career opportunities by learning from local women working in various trades. The Women of Science and Technology Day is sponsored by the Girl Scouts of Alaska and takes place in various cities across the state. It aims to introduce girls to careers in the STEM fields of science, technology, engineering and math. KMXT's Brianna Gibbs recently spoke with Roslyn Lack of Girl Scouts of Alaska to learn more about what to expect from the event. The workshops start tomorrow at 10 a.m. and will run until 12:35 p.m. The event is free and open to any girl from kindergarten through grade school.
