

Freed Attends Her Last City Council Meeting

Wednesday, 22 April 2009

{audio}/images/stories/mp3/090422.freed_goodbye.mp3{/audio}

Outgoing City Manager Linda Freed was presented with a memento from City Hall after her last city council meeting Thursday night. The "Shuttle Ferry" sign is left over from the days before the Fred Zharoff Bridge when the city would operate a ferry between town and Near Island. Photo by Jay Barrett

Jay Barrett/KMXT

Kodiak

City Manager Linda Freed attended her last meeting as an employee of the city Tuesday night. Mayor Carolyn Floyd, the council members and City Clerk Debra Marlar all took the opportunity to wish her well.

Freed

will remain on the job through the end of the month, at which time Aimee Kniazowski (kenya-zz'off-ski), will take over.